

YOUNG

Is Arrested At Derby For Murder.

Quicer Cablegram Comes From Paris.

YOUNG'S TRUNK HAS ARRIVED
FROM CHICAGO.

IT CONTAINED BLOODY CLOTHING

And Woman's Apparel Believed to Belong to Mrs. Pulitzer, the Murdered Woman.

Derby, Conn., Sept. 22.—A man arrested here today has been identified as Wm. Hooper Young, who is wanted in New York for the murder of Mrs.
Annie Pulitzer.

New York, Sept. 22.—Wm. S. Hart,
a lawyer engaged by John W. Young, father of Wm. H. Young who is wanted in connection with the murder of Mrs. Pulitzer, today received the following cablegram:

"Paris, Sept. 21.—Please give this to newspapers and request publication:
To Wm. Hooper Young—I hear you are suspected of heinous crime and being sought for. I advise you to surrender to officers of law. I have engaged counsel for your defense. No one knowing you can believe you guilty. You owe it to yourself, your family and religion you forsook to prove your innocence. (Signed.)
"JOHN YOUNG."

New York, Sept. 22.—This morning
Assistant District Attorney Garvin opened Young's trunk, captured by the Chicago police. In the trunk was woman's wearing apparel supposed to belong to Mrs. Pulitzer, and bloody men's garments belonging to Young.

New York, Sept. 22.—The search for Wm. Hooper Young, wanted for the murder of Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, whose mutilated body was found floating in the abandoned Morris canal near Jersey City Thursday morning last, has been thus far unavailing. The police forces of this and the surrounding boroughs have been bending all energies and running down all clues which come to them to locate Young.

The chief development of Sunday came from Brooklyn and it leads the police to believe that the fugitive has escaped to the vicinity of Canarsie.
L. I. Captain Titus of the detective bureau is inclined to believe that Young, finding all avenues of final escape shut off has fled to this spot on Long Island to commit suicide. The captain ordered a special force of detectives to Canarsie to conduct a thorough search of the neighborhood.

The story of this clue is that late Saturday night a man supposed to have been Young was seen in a lodging house in Brooklyn. When he applied for a room he was told there was none vacant, and he was forced to be satisfied with a chair. Soon afterwards he became nervous and arose to his feet. Some of those in the room arose simultaneously. Then the stranger dashed down the back staircase of the hotel to the yard with some of the lodgers after him. Vaulting the high back fence, closely pursued the fugitive fled up the street. The pursuers gaining on him the stranger halted and drew a revolver and brought the lodgers to a standstill. Turning again he caught sight of a Nostrand avenue car bound for Fulton street and raced for it. Before the lodgers came up the car with the fugitive on board was blocks away.

The above story was told Captain Titus and he received a corroboration of
it. A man resembling Young had been seen in Canarsie. Captain Titus informed told him that the man seemed all worn out; that he looked fati-gued, and almost exhausted. The captain added that Police Captain Short of Canarsie and all his force
were scouring the country thereabouts for the man. The Captain said, however, that he feared they would succeed only in case the man was Young,
in finding his dead body, as he is of the impression Young would commit suicide.

MINISTER'S TRIAL ENDS

He Feared Unfair Treatment and Unfroked Himself
--He Had a Nagging Wife With Whom He Found It Impossible to Live.

Keokuk, Ia., Sept. 22.—The case of Rev. P. J. Henness, before the town conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, came very dramatically to an end Sunday. After the trial committee appointed by Bishop Hamilton and composed of thirteen prominent divines, had been in session far into the night, Mr. Henness himself took the stand.

He said it was evident to himself and to his attorneys that he was not to have a fair trial and handed the parcements of his ordination to the committee, following with his resignation from membership in the church as well as from the ministry. Turning to his wife, who was present, the self-unfroked minister exclaimed:
"Woman, behold the wreck of a man
you have made."

His wife broke down at this dramatic exhibition. The committee for the trial of Mr. Henness immediately closed its session, having lost its jurisdiction of the case by his action in placing himself beyond the pale of the church.

Mr. Henness, after maintaining silence stubbornly for a year, said that the reason he left his wife was because of her continual "nagging,"
which broke down his health and rendered it impossible for him to do ministerial work.

The charge against him before the conference was his separation from his wife, whom he agreed to support
but refused to live with. No question of immorality was involved, the claims of the prosecution being that Mr. Hen-ness' conduct was unclerical and that a minister so separated from his wife, should not be sent out as pastor over
a church by the bishop.

Mr. Henness will go to North Dakota to engage in mining business.
His friends say that a movement will be started from his case to have the general quadrennial conference of the Methodist church take action against one of the oldest and most prominent bishops, who also separated from his wife under similar conditions.

PRESIDENT TO REVIEW KING'S TROOPS

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 22.—After a quiet Sunday and a good night's rest President Roosevelt arose vastly refreshed this morning and proceeded to attack the program of the day in a leisurely way. He breakfasted in the Flemish room at the Cadillac House with the members of his immediate party and later had brief chats
with ex-Governor Rich, Congressman Hamilton and a few other Michigan high dignitaries. The program for today includes a speech at the armory
to the Spanish War veterans; a ride
on the Tashmoo, the fast lake steamer; review of a parade and a speech
at the Spanish War veteran banquet in the evening. His speech on this occasion will be an important one because in the metropolis of the State which opposed his Cuban reciprocity policy in congress, he will reiterate and emphasize his well known views on this subject. The city is crowded with strangers and the President's reception is sure to be of a most enthusiastic nature, judging by the warmth of his reception yesterday and the evident disposition of today's crowds.

SMALLPOX

At Cleveland Believed to be Under Control—Fewer New Cases Every Day—Vaccination.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 22.—There are now 220 cases of smallpox in Cleveland, a city of 400,000 inhabitants.
Each case is being treated either at the detention hospital or is under strict quarantine. The health department has already had 200,000 vaccinations performed by a corps of 250
physicians in the employ of the health department. The result is a very percentage lessening of the number of new cases reported each day. The health department believes that the disease is now under control.

The very carefully kept records of the health department show that the cases thus far have been confined to certain districts of Cleveland inhabited by the very poor, and at no time has the disease spread beyond these well defined limits. Our people at home are not seriously concerned over the disease except in the several neighborhoods where it has made its appearance. All business in Cleveland, all public gatherings of whatever sort are going on just as though no smallpox had ever been found here, and it is perfectly safe for people to come here just as they have always done.

A Bird of Prey.

Hoax—There's a bird called the passenger bird. I wonder why they call it that?

Joax—Oh, I suppose it's because it's a bird of prey.—Philadelphia Record

One of the interesting facts in connection with President Roosevelt's visit is that a company of Canadian soldiers of Windsor, will take part in the parade here and the American President will review the troops of King Edward.

Detroit, Sept. 22.—President Roosevelt arrived in Detroit at 8 a. m. Sunday, and was given an enthusiastic reception. He attended church with ex-Secretary Alger and enjoyed a drive
about the city. He paid a visit to St.
Mary's hospital, and visited T. K.
Dougherty, a Spanish war veteran who is dying of consumption. The man had expressed a desire to see the President.

AT CINCINNATI.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 22.—President Roosevelt spoke here Saturday night,
discussing the trusts and the tariff.
The policy of the administration was formally announced. The President declared that the new conditions under which we live have brought both good and evil requiring control under an equitable system which will be effective and do no injury.

FEARFUL

Were the Detonations Says Capt. Mc-Kay Who Reports Avar 2000
People Killed.

New York, Sept. 22.—Captain Wm.
McKay has arrived here from Fer-
de France, where he was when Mount Pelée broke forth August 30. He says the detonations were fearful and that at least 2,000 people were killed, over an area ten times greater than the eruption of May last. Captain Mc-Kay says the southern part of the island is in good condition but the north is devastated. The captain says food supplies are not needed, for so long as the people can get food free they will not work. He says that refugees are not overcrowding the prosperous parts of the island as there are comparatively few of these refugees.

Four Children Perish.

London, Sept. 22.—Four children perished in flames which destroyed
several farm buildings at Wingham, near Dover today. The district is full of hop-pickers and the four children were assisting in the work when the building took fire.

ARMY MANEUVERS.

Washington, Sept. 22.—The army maneuvers at Fort Riley, Kas., began today with a series of drills and will continue until October 6, concluding with the "Battle of Fort Riley," in which all of the troops, as defensive or offensive, will participate. The "battle" will last two days.

Nearly 90 percent of Germany's railways belong to the Government.

TO TAX

South African Colonies to Help Pay the Cost
of War.

London, Sept. 22.—The Daily Mail says the government has decided that the new South African colonies are to be required to pay $500,000,000 toward the cost of the South African war. The colonies are, however, to be allowed ample time in which to make this payment; it will not be collected
until the extension of trade and expansion of revenue permit, and consequently the loan will not be floated
for two or three years.

Mining profits will probably be taxed 10 per cent more than they were before the war and money will also be obtained by granting all kinds of concessions and mineral rights

REQUIEM

For Queen of Belgians, Who Died Friday—King Refuses to Speak to His Daughter.

Spa, Belgium, Sept. 22.—A requiem mass for the late queen of the Belgians at which the bishop of Liege officiated, was celebrated here today.
Special trains were run for the occasion from Brussels, to bring members of the royal family, who, after the mass, conducted the remains of the late queen back to the capital. King Leopold arrived here.

Brussels, Sept. 22.—A dispatch to the Patriote from Spa says that when King Leopold arrived there he refused to speak to the Princess Stephanie, Countess of Lonyay, and compelled her to leave the royal palace. The princess consequently left Spa suddenly. She rode to the station in a hired carriage amid demonstrations of sympathy from the people, and took a train for Brussels.

MASONIC

Annual Report of the Springfield
Home—Total Enrollment is 136.
Expenditures.

Springfield, Sept. 22.—The annual report of the Superintendent John W.
Parsons of the State Masonic Home has just been issued. It shows that there is a total enrollment of 136 divided as follows: Men 57, women 31, boys 24, girls 24.

The financial statement shows the total cash on hand for the year ending July 31, to have been $15,648.06. This amount includes $1,000 in bonds in the library fund. The total receipts were $27,237.90; disbursements, $26,800.45.
For the maintenance of the institution $22,542.63 was expended.

The total receipts since the founding of the home have reached the sum of $313,885.67.

Total disbursements have been $290-237.61.

Returns from the home have been gratifying and have contributed in a material way to the support of the institution.

Rain Ends Forest Fires.

Encampment, Wyo., Sept. 22.—Heavy rain has extinguished the forest fires in southern Wyoming and northern

AIRSHIP

With Count in Charge Starts to Cross
the Mediterranean—Boat Epee Goes Along.

Paris, Sept. 22.—Count de la Vaulx, the aeronaut, today made another attempt to cross the Mediterranean in his airship. Accompanied by four aeronauts, the Count ascended from Palavas at four o'clock today. They hope to cross the Mediterranean and test the Count's steering apparatus, which he calls a deviation. The airship sailed in the direction of Port Vendres, attended by the torpedo destroyer Epee.

South Africa's volcanic origin
and the land in the vicinity of Kinberly is so subterranean that even an earthquake cannot exist upon it.

MURDERED SWEETHEART

And Was Killed by a Posse--Peter Olsen Fired on Pursuers, But was Shot to Death by Them at Bancroft, Nebraska.

Bancroft, Neb., Sept. 22.—Peter Olsen who shot and killed Mary Paterson in Omaha, on Sept. 8, was killed Sunday in a fight with a posse three miles north of this place at noon.

Olsen came to Bancroft Saturday
and was recognized in a barber shop.
He left town at once and Constable Coppie formed a posse and began pursuit. The posse was on horseback and overtook Olsen three miles north of town. Constable Coppie ordered him to surrender but he paid no attention and on a second demand from the officer, drew a revolver and fired at him. A general fusillade followed and Olsen fell at the first volley. The posse rushed to Olsen who raised his revolver and attempted to again fire but the cartridge did not explode. A member of the posse then fired a load of shot into his body from the effects of which he died a few minutes later, while being taken to town.

Peter Olsen shot and killed Mary Peterson because she repeatedly refused to accept his attentions. He made several threats, and becoming desperate, entered the home of Miss Peterson two weeks ago and shot her through the breast without warning.
He made his escape and had not been seen until recognized at Bancroft Sunday.

SITUATION CRITICAL AT PANAMA AND COLON

Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 22.—The British steamer La Plata arrived here Sunday from Colon, bringing a large number of refugees from the isthmus.
It is reported that owing to the fear of rebel attack, a great many people are leaving Colon and Panama. The Colombian government is still sending reinforcements to the isthmus and the La Plata carried 1,000 government soldiers from Savannah to Colon. Colombian revolutionists are said to be massing in the neighborhood of the railroad over the isthmus. The refugees declare the situation at Panama and Colon to be extremely critical.

Officers of the La Plata say they were informed while at Colon that several liberal sympathizers had been imprisoned at Panama because they violated the order recently issued by the government and appeared upon the streets of that city.

Business at Colon is entirely suspended.

The intention of the revolutionists
would seem to be to attack the government forces without interfering with railroad traffic over the isthmus.

AS A MAN

Young Chicago Bride Disguised Herself and "Hobbed" a Year For the Honeymoon Trip.

San Bernardino, Cal., Sept. 22.—In a round-up of hoboes found sleeping in Santa Fe box cars one woman was discovered dressed as a man. She gave her name as Mrs. James I.
Smith, of Chicago, and claimed that a young fellow with her was her husband. It appears she was married to Smith a year ago in Chicago, and immediately after the ceremony the two started out on a unique honeymoon trip their object being to beat their way across the continent. They have traveled 3,700 miles, the woman all the time disguised as a man, and have been arrested 11 times for vagrancy.
In speaking of her eventful trip she said:

"I have ridden on brake beams in clouds of dust, on blind baggage cars,
in the intense cold of night and in box cars with none but hoboes for companions. I have been put off from trains in the midst of the Yuma desert,
have gone hungry, taken pot luck
with Indian sheep herders and have picked fruit with men and earned men's wages when I could get work."

FOUR WOMEN

And One Man Whipped by White Caps
in the Shadow of an Indiana University.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 22.—A party of white caps called at the house of a man named Johnson, who lives on Maple Heights, this city, and marched five inmates to the woods near by,
where they were severely whipped.
The victims were Johnson and wife and three girls, named Gelson, Hampton and Bush. Switches were vigorously applied to their bare backs and legs.

The ground where the whipping took place was thick with broken switches.
It is said there were 12 men in the party.

This is the first white capping case
that has taken place near the city.
The woods where the whipping took place is a part of "Kendall," an aristocratic suburb. The parties whipped were charged with keeping a disorderly house,
and were given two days' notice to leave.

Canada's yield of cereals this year
is estimated at 300,000,000 bushels.

FIRM

AS They Were Twenty Weeks Ago.

Expected Break of the Strikers Didn't Occur.

NO CHANGE IN CONDITION, SAYS
MITCHELL.

GREAT DESTITUTION PREVAILS.

Almost Starvation Among the Miners, Relief is Given as Fast as Possible.

Tamaqua, Pa., Sept. 22.—The expected break in the strikers' ranks failed to materialize, and today the men in the Panther Creek Valley are as firm as they were on the first morning of the strike, 20 weeks ago. Although rain this morning kept strikers indoors. It was planned that a strenuous effort should be made to keep non-strikers home and a heavy picket line was thrown out, but the continual down-pour compelled them to abandon the effort. Another effort will be made tomorrow.
At Greenwood colliery the guard
was attacked by unknown persons from ambush early this morning. Several shots were exchanged but so far as can be learned no one was hit. The troops at Manilla Park did not leave their quarters this morning.

NO CHANGE

In Strike Conditions Says Mitchell,
Many Cases of Great Destitution
in Mining Region.

New York, Sept. 22.—John Mitchell, president of the United Miners, was at the Ashted House this morning.
He said that he would have no conference with the operators or their representatives today. Strike conditions
he said, remain the same as they were four months ago. President Mitchell says there are cases of great destitution and almost starvation among the miners, but relief is being given as fast as possible.

HENDERSON

While Declining to Run Against Gov.
Boise Will Not Resign His Seat
in Congress.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—David B. Tenderson, speaker of the national house of representatives, passed through Chicago Sunday on his way to Atlantic City, where he will join Mrs. Henderson. Before leaving for the East, Speaker Henderson reiterated his decision to retire from the congressional race in Iowa, denied any intention of "abdicating" his present position until his term of office shall have expired, and declared himself in perfect accord with the tariff views of President Roosevelt, as enunciated in his Cincinnati speech.

"Is there any chance of your friends prevailing on you to reconsider your action?"

"Absolutely none. I cannot see my way clear to gratify their wishes. It grieves me to remain firm with them, but it is a matter of principle. The pressure brought to bear on me has been strong. Senator Allison and a host of my old friends came to the station to make a final assault on me.
I had to say, 'No.'"

"Will you resign from Congress and give up the speakership before the end of your term?"

"I shall not," was the prompt reply. "My declination of a renomination is one thing and a resignation from congress is another thing. I shall serve out my term in congress
and I shall continue to fill the office of speaker. I have had no other intention."

Will Adjourn Tuesday.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 22.—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen attended church in a body Sunday in the morning at the Second Presbyterian church and at night in the First Baptist. It has been definitely decided that the convention will adjourn Tuesday.

REPUBLICAN COMMOTION.

The fact comes to light that after midnight of the day that Speaker Henderson published his withdrawal from his Congressional candidacy, a delegation of Republican Senators then in New York, called at the room of Congressman Babcock at the Waldorf hotel. These were Allison, Hanna, Aldrich, Spooner and Lodge, who had just been in conference with Roosevelt at Oyster Bay. Almost with tears in their eyes they asked Babcock, who is chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, if there was not some way of repairing the damage done by Henderson.

It was decided to send a telegram to the Speaker, signed by the Congressional Campaign Committee, and all of the Senators, protesting in behalf of the Republican party against the withdrawal and demanding that he reconsider his action. The telegram was sent, with its imposing list of signatures, and on the afternoon of the same day a reply was received saying it was impossible for the Speaker to change his mind. President Roosevelt sent a similar telegram from Oyster Bay and received a like answer.

The public at large have very little knowledge of the terrible commotion that Henderson's forced withdrawal created in the inner high up circles of the Republican party.

The county ticket of the Licking Democracy is composed of men of integrity and superior capability. Their fitness has been tried and proved. They are all men of the people, and are candidates by virtue of being nominated by the people. The Democratic ticket of Licking county was not fixed up and set up by a select gang composed of two or three men. A candidate must be nominated by popular methods in order to receive the support of Licking county Democrats.

A novelty in divorce is reported from a little town in Austria, where the parties in a recent case issued cards of invitation to their friends to be present at their trial.

Roosevelt's Insincerity On the Trust Question.

Before asking for a constitutional amendment transferring to Congress supreme power over trusts, and taking that power from the States, or even the right to control and regulate, the question is put to the President from all quarters, why does he not seek to enforce existing anti-trust laws? Take the Sherman law of 1890. That was considered necessary legislation against trusts.

It was devised by several wise heads of the Republican party. It had as its authors John Sherman, President Harrison, James G. Blaine, Edmunds and the noted Republican statesmen at the head of the party fifteen years ago. Yet that law has been allowed to lapse into innocuous desuetude. Some attempts are made occasionally in the civil courts, but they amount to nothing. The Sherman law of 1890 also contains provisions bringing it within the scope of the criminal law, and providing drastic remedies. These were very effective and curative, and have been allowed to lapse. The really effective provisions of the great anti-trust law, over which Republicans boasted for years as showing the intent and purpose of their party, are of no more effect than obsolete laws made hundreds of years ago. They are not tested. Why? Simply because they provide prompt and adequate punishment of the trusts magnates as criminals, and the law makes them criminals.

President Roosevelt proposes a constitutional amendment that is held impossible of attainment, and at best cannot be made operative until the close of his next administration, supposing him to be elected in 1904. A constitutional amendment such as he

TIMELY AND PROPER ACTION.

It will be seen by the court report in another column that the Grand Jury was dismissed this morning in consequence of the jury law having been declared unconstitutional.

This action of the court was foreshadowed in the Advocate a few days ago in giving the account of the conference between Judge Seward and Prosecutor Fitzgibbon pertaining to the recent decision declaring the unconstitutionality of the jury law, Judge Seward's attention having been called to the decision by our alert and attentive Presecuror.

The dismissal of the jury was a necessary proceeding. Had the Court not acted in the matter and allowed proceedings to go on, every action of both the grand and petit juries would have been finally rendered null and void. Thousands of dollars are thus saved by Licking county in this matter, and no criminals will escape punishment as they would have done had any criminal cases been tried.

HENDERSON WAS FORCED TO WITHDRAW.

Speaker Henderson's declaration to run out the race for another term in Congress is explained by the fact that he got away from the false life at Washington long enough to get among the people of Iowa and find that the rank and file of the Republican party are sick and tired of a trust-protecting tariff.

Finding that he couldn't faithfully represent the wishes of his constituents and still do service for the trusts in Congress, he did the only honorable thing there was to do, and that was to back out and permit the people to nominate somebody who would represent their views and demands.

Henderson's attitude is more praiseworthy than Roosevelt's. The President did not take a dignified position when he urged Henderson to reconsider and run for Congress in spite of the fact that he is not in sympathy with the Republicans of his district. Roosevelt practically urged Henderson to go back to Congress and misrepresent his district on the great question now uppermost in the minds of his constituents.

But there was such a manifest determination on the part of the people of Speaker Henderson's district not to be misrepresented any longer that his withdrawal from the race was practically compulsory.

proposes cannot, at its very best, be put into operation before March 4, 1903.

The section of the law of 1890 which the President passes by in his demand for a constitutional amendment cannot be too often brought to the attention of the people. It is as follows: "Every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, is hereby declared illegal. Every person who shall make any such contract or engage in any such combination or conspiracy shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court."

Anyone with a very moderate intellectual equipment can understand this. It is plain as one of the Ten Commandments, and plainer, because it specifies with exactness the punishment for violation of the law. Enforced, the magnates of the meat, the coal, the iron and steel trusts and scores of others would find themselves behind iron bars, just as the striking miners are jailed for contempt of court in disregarding government by injunction.

Why does not the President seek the enforcement of the law as it stands, rather than evade such a duty by loud and meaningless professions about the need of a constitutional amendment? It creates the belief that his opposition to trusts is not sincere, but only playing politics. He sets aside a certain and definite remedy and proposes a vague and doubtful one—most people hold an impossible one.

MAIL BOXES

ON RURAL ROUTES MUST BE OF RIGHT KIND.

Postmaster Ickes Lays Down the Law Which the Department Has Laid Down—Read This.

The order of the Postmaster-General with reference to proper boxes for the reception of mail has been productive of some opposition. This is useless and unwise, and those who refuse to comply with the order are injuring no one but themselves. It is not any more compulsory than the placing of a 2-cent stamp upon a letter. If it is not placed there the letter will not go, and if approved boxes are not secured and placed so that the carrier can reach them without dismantling or driving through ditches, the mail will be left at the postoffice.

No person in the employ of the government is permitted to deal in boxes, therefore it is nothing to the carrier or to any postmaster what box is used so that it is an approved, box, and the only harm that would come to a postmaster or carrier would be for violating the order of the Postmaster General. Persons who imagine that a carrier can be injured or have his position endangered by refusing to carry mail are simply mistaken.

Boxes can be had at a reasonable price, and when once purchased it is a lifetime property. Box renters pay for a box over and over again and it never becomes personal property.

I trust the people will realize that the department had ample reason for issuing such an order. The disposition of many people to put up poor and insufficient boxes has been the cause of this order. It is a pleasure for carriers to serve all the patrons on their several routes, but the refusal of a comparative few to comply with the order will neither effect the position as carrier nor the carriers salary.

The dimension of square boxes shall be not less than 18x8x6, and cylindrical boxes must be 18 inches long and 6 inches in diameter. All boxes shall be of sheet-iron or galvanized iron or steel, and be made in a good workmanlike manner, and any one can make these boxes, but they must be approved by the department.

Fourteen boxes have been approved by the Department, as follows:
Postal Improvement Company box, Norriston, Pa.

Bates-Hawley Signal Mail box, Joliet, Ill.

A. L. Henry, American Metal Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

Century Post Co., Adrian, Mich.

Bond Steel Post Co., Adrian, Mich.

Century Rural Mail Box Co., Detroit, Mich.

Corbin Cabinet Lock Co., New Britain, Conn.

C. G. Folsen box, South Bend, Ind.

P. B. Engler box, Taneytown, Md.

The Enterprise box, Burlington, Ia.

Kelly Foundry Machine Co. box, Goshen, Ind.

W. W. Sweigart, York Road, Md.

Beaver Mfg. Co., Beaver, Pa.

Geo. E. Wirt box, Greensburg, Ind.

These boxes can be had direct from the manufacturers, or from John I. Smith, James M. Lake, Elliott & Wilson, and perhaps others who are acting as agents.

I trust that all who have not so secured regulation boxes will do so at once and save any inconvenience to themselves or the carriers. October 1st is the time set by the department when all should be provided with proper boxes. Very respectfully,

J. M. ICKES, Postmaster.

Of the Platform Adopted at the Democratic State Convention.

In state convention assembled, we, the Democrats of Ohio, hereby acknowledge and declare our continued allegiance to the Democratic party of the nation and on national issues reaffirm and endorse the principles laid down in its last national platform adopted at Kansas City, and which was fully and ably represented in the presidential campaign of 1900 by William Jennings Bryan. Regarding those principles as opposed to imperialism and colonialism, as opposed to government by injunction, as opposed to trusts and trust-fostering tariffs, as opposed to financial monopoly and as opposed to all other legalized monopolies and privileges we condemn every effort to repudiate or ignore them.

In state and municipal affairs we pledge our party to a faithful application of those Democratic principles to the end that the burdens of taxation may be equalized and home rule and local self-government be established and preserved.

REPUBLICANS ARRANGED.

Under the long continued control of the Republican party in this state monopoly has been fostered and protected; the farmer and the small home owners have been burdened with excessive taxes that the beneficiaries and favorites of that party might be permitted to escape their just share of the public burdens; our public institutions have been wastefully and inefficiently managed and in them scandals and cruel wrongs have been practiced upon the defenseless wards of the state; the farmers and small shippers continue to suffer from unjust discrimination at the hands of unregulated monopoly; the fine system of municipal government has been wrecked and the credit of cities destroyed, thereby producing a spirit of insecurity and unrest in all public affairs. The people can no longer trust the administration of their affairs to a party thus recklessly devoted to interests adverse to the public welfare. As a more specific statement of our principles upon these and other public questions we declare:

TAXABLE PROPERTY.

1. That all taxable property should be appraised by assessing boards which should be in session for at least a part of each year and whose proceedings and deliberations should be open to the public; that power be given to employ a representative to present the interests of the public in hearings before these boards and that in making assessments all property should be appraised at not less than its saleable value.

2. That the present laws for assessing the property of steam railroads and other public service corporations should be so changed as to compel the assessment of those properties at not less than their saleable value as going concerns and to prevent their evasion of just taxation.

CLASSIFICATION.

3. That to prevent evasion of state taxes by discriminating valuations, a separation of the sources of state and local revenues should be made. And to that end, we heartily endorse the constitutional amendment now pending before the people and to be voted on next year, which will permit classifications of taxable property.

4. That all public service corporations should be required by law to make sworn public reports and that the power of visitation and examination over such corporations should be given to the proper auditing officers to the end that the true value of the privileges had by such corporations may be made plain to the people.

FREE PASSES.

5. That the acceptance of free passes or other favors from railroads by public officers or employees should be adequate ground for their removal from office.

6. That the denial of the right of free speech and peaceable persuasion in times of labor disturbances is a denial of the right of free speech, and that government by injunction if persisted in, will wreck the liberties of the people.

MUNICIPAL CODE.

7. That we demand the enactment of a code which provides absolute home rule for municipalities which shall include the right to establish the merit system with civil service under which that system, as now in use in fire and police departments may be strengthened and perfected and be extended to other municipal departments particularly to water and lighting plants now operated by municipalities and to street car and all public service plants that may hereafter be established under municipal ownership and operation.

HANNA, COX AND FORAKER.

8. That we condemn the vicious and corrupt bargain between the boss of Cincinnati and Ohio's United States Senators to force through the legislature a code that will foist upon the municipalities of Ohio Cincinnati's form of government in order that the power of its boss may be preserved on one hand and on the other hand will perpetuate existing street railway franchises which Ohio's United States Senators represent.

9. That the municipal code should protect the public against all clauses which may be clandestinely placed therein in the special interest of public service monopolies by requiring that all ordinances granting, renewing, extending or modifying franchises shall be inoperative until confirmed by a majority vote of the people of the municipality, and we are unalterably opposed to the granting of any perpetual franchises.

SENATORIAL NOMINATIONS.

10. That until United States senators are required by amendment to the federal constitution to be elected by popular vote nominations of candidates for United States senator should be made by state conventions. And we hereby direct that in the official call for the next Democratic state convention of Ohio there be embodied a clause providing for the nomination at that convention of Democratic candidate for United States senator and a clause providing for action by said convention, upon all amendments to the state constitution then pending before the people.

Upon these principles of home rule, and just taxation, and to the accomplishment of these purposes in municipal and state affairs, we invite the co-operation of all citizens of Ohio, regardless of their party affiliations, on national questions, hereby solemnly pledging our candidates to the faithful observance of this declaration both in letter and spirit.

Taking Kitty's Photograph

Round the parlor whisking,
Here and there and everywhere,
Climbing, running, frisking;
On the table, in the chair.

Kitty seems forever flitting;
Maids and mistress scold and laugh;
Now she on a stool is sitting;
Let me take her photograph.

THE BROKEN VASE.

How Two Little Boys Learned a Lesson in Carefulness.

"Arnold, you've done it now!" It had been an awful smash, and the big china pot that, with a plant of some kind in it, had stood in the dining room window ever since Arnold and Hugh could remember lay on the floor smashed to bits.

"Mother, will be vexed?" The tears were very near Arnold's eyes. He hated breaking anything, and being mother's special property made it all the worse.

"What can we do? It's too bad to be mended." "I wonder if Miss Milton would let us walk into town and get another? We must do something before mother comes home." For mother was away on a visit.

"We'll ask her anyway. We needn't tell her why we want to go." Miss Milton didn't quite approve, but they begged so hard that at last she consented, and off they went after emptying all the contents of their money boxes into their purses.

"I'm afraid it'll cost an awful lot," Hugh said. "We must get one like the one we broke if we can."

"Yes; but I do hope our money will be enough—don't you?" "If it isn't, we must promise to pay the rest afterward."

So they went into the first china shop they came to and asked to see some flowerpots.

"They're not a bit like mother's," Arnold said in a very regretful tone when they had inspected all the contents of the shop in the flowerpot line.

"No; I'm very sorry," Hugh said, turning to the shopman, "but none of these is what we want. I'm afraid we must try somewhere else."

So they went on, explaining each time exactly what they wanted.

"I don't think you'll get it, sir," the man at a shop they went into as a last hope told them. "It sounds to me as though what you want is a very old pattern, not the kind they make now-days."

So the boys went sadly out and, very disappointed indeed, took the road home.

But they had not gone more than about twenty yards when they heard some calling after them, and, looking round, they found it was the man who had attended to them at the last shop.

"I've just thought of it," he said. "There's a little shop round the corner where they sell old furniture and sometimes have china. They might have something of the kind there."

So the boys started back, hopeful once more.

They stood and looked in the window a minute before going in.

"I say, that one in the corner is something like mother's. If we can't get one exactly like it—and I'm afraid we can't—don't you think we might have that?"

"We'll go in and see." But the one they had seen from the window was the only one the shopman had.

"What's the price of that one?" Hugh asked.

The man took it up, turned it over and told them $2.

They had not expected it to be so much and were rather staggered for a moment. Then an idea occurred to Hugh.

"Let's ask him to keep it till tomorrow and go home and ask dad to lend us enough to make up the money," he suggested.

So that was what they did, and the next morning, having mortgaged their pocket money for some time ahead, they started off again and came back just before lunch, carrying the precious bowl.

And when mother came home she was very much surprised indeed to find quite a different bowl occupying the place of honor in the dining room window and the old one, the pieces of which Miss Milton had carefully stuck together, standing on the sideboard.

And, though she was dreadfully vexed at the accident, she hadn't the heart to scold the boys, especially when she heard how they had mortgaged their pocket money to get a new one.

So there will be no more pocket money for Hugh or Arnold for a long time, but it is not the loss of the money that grieves them, but the fact that mother has told them that the reason the old vase was so dear to her is because it was given to her own mother as a wedding present. And they have made up their minds to be ever so careful in the future.

Long Lived Fish.

There are now living in the Royal aquarium in Russia several cats that are known to be over 600 years old, and it has been ascertained in a number of cases that whales live to be over 200 years old.

Sticks of Rain.

Our little Florence on being prepared for church one Sunday morning regarded her bonnet with much satisfaction and said:

"I guess my bonnet is the fashionest bonnet they is."

One day when she saw some friends laughing on the window she said:

"Oh, mamma, dear, come and see 60 sticks of rain!"—Leslie's Monthly.

A BOY'S TWO FAVORITES.

How Puss Brought Him Her Babies, Getting Annie's Salary Raised.

There is a boy up town, ten or twelve years old, who is extravagantly fond of his pet cat. The animal lives in the basement, and the boy makes daily visits there unless some accident prevents him from doing so. Recently he underwent an operation for the relief of enlarged tonsils, and as a result he was compelled to remain in bed for several days. On the second day of his confinement to his room others members of the family caught a glimpse of the cat making her way upstairs with something in her mouth. She made her way to her master's room and, jumping upon the bed, laid a tiny kitten beside the pillow. After noting the astonishment with which the boy regarded the advent of this unexpected visitor the mother cat made her way to the basement again and returned with a second kitten. This was all the family pussy had, and she purred with satisfaction at the delighted expression of the sick boy.

The boy who was so fond of his cat was also passionately attached to the maid who had taken care of him all through his earlier years. He frequently vowed that he would marry her when he grew up and besought her to wait for him. One day he was suddenly taken with the toothache, and a visit to the dentist became necessary. It was decided to extract the tooth, and laughing gas was administered.

"Mamma," stammered the boy thickly as he was lapsing into unconsciousness, "will you do me a favor?"

"Yes; anything you want," replied the indulgent mother.

"Then raise Annie's salary $5 a month."

After the tooth had been taken out the boy could remember only one thing that had happened, and that was that mamma had promised to raise Annie's pay. As the mother had always brought up her children in the way of truth she felt obliged to accede to the request, and Annie was made that much richer.—St. Louis Star.

Watching For Papa.

Up here in the window each day just at noon we wait for our papa, who's sure to come soon.

From the hayfields to dinner and rest from the sun, And the minute we spy him we jump down and run!

Little Mother.

I heard May saying over to herself one day, "Dear little mother, dear little mother!" Her mamma had not been very well that day. May's mother is quite small, a bright, busy, pleasant little lady, loving her home and taking excellent care of it and so cheerful that neighbors and friends like to see her. They often wonder how one so small can do so much.

May thinks he is about as big as his mother, and so, in short, he often squares off and says he is too big for her to handle him. But this is all in fun. He and May stand up firmly for ma. And when they have grown older and think of their childhood days always no doubt one of the most pleasant and thoughts of all will be the picture in their minds of the dear, pleasant face and active, busy ways of little mother.—Brooklyn Eagle.

How Puss Brought Him Her Babies.

There is a boy up town, ten or twelve years old, who is extravagantly fond of his pet cat. The animal lives in the basement, and the boy makes daily visits there unless some accident prevents him from doing so. Recently he underwent an operation for the relief of enlarged tonsils, and as a result he was compelled to remain in bed for several days. On the second day of his confinement to his room others members of the family caught a glimpse of the cat making her way upstairs with something in her mouth. She made her way to her master's room and, jumping upon the bed, laid a tiny kitten beside the pillow. After noting the astonishment with which the boy regarded the advent of this unexpected visitor the mother cat made her way to the basement again and returned with a second kitten. This was all the family pussy had, and she purred with satisfaction at the delighted expression of the sick boy.

The boy who was so fond of his cat was also passionately attached to the maid who had taken care of him all through his earlier years. He frequently vowed that he would marry her when he grew up and besought her to wait for him. One day he was suddenly taken with the toothache, and a visit to the dentist became necessary. It was decided to extract the tooth, and laughing gas was administered.

"Yes; anything you want," replied the indulgent mother.

THE YACHT THAT WAS NEVER HEARD FROM

[Original.]

"Tell us about the Hilda, Brownlow."

"It isn't safe to spin that yarn. Some of you fellows might get me into trouble."

A promise of secrecy was made, and the yarn was spun:

"The Hilda had the newest thing in engines, and as soon as she had been tested her owner, Mr. Chippindale, started in her for a trip around the world, with me as engineer. He was the only one aboard except the officers and crew."

"A great many people think the days of pirates are past and gone. Don't you believe it. Ships go out and are never heard from—gone down in a storm; more likely their crews are murdered and the ship is plundered and scuttled. Well, we were steaming westward somewhere between Hongkong and Manila when we met a sailer wearing British colors coming through the water, turning the white before her, heading right for us and signaling us to slow down. Thinking she had something important to communicate, we stopped the engines, and a boatload of men came aboard. As soon as they were on our deck the ship they came from hauled down the British flag and raised the skull and crossbones."

"I'm not going over the doing away with every man of us. That's what keeps me from sleeping."

"Weren't you one of the yacht's crew?"

"Sure. But I was the engineer, and not one of the pirates could run an engine. Goolledge, their captain, said to me: 'Run them engines, and so long as you run them right you live. When you run them wrong—'

"I knew what he meant without his finishing, and you bet I ran the engines right. This was the time when the Spanish war was coming on, and we'd learned all about it from speaking an American cruiser, especially that Dewey was soon to sail from Hongkong. Besides, all the nations were sending men-of-war to the Philippines to see fair play. Goolledge had been dodging vessels that were calculated to give him this information and did not know anything at all about it. He came to me and asked me what kind of craft we'd been meeting, and I concocted a story. I told him that a couple of hundred miles east of Manila we'd passed a small steamer, capable of making eight knots and no more, that carried express matter. Goolledge suspected that a money safe belonging to the express companies might be aboard and was itching to get at it. We would have to go back between Hongkong and Manila to reach the steamer and were likely to fall in with a cruiser."

"Sure enough, one morning we saw a black line on the horizon to the northward, then another and another. It was Dewey's fleet, but we didn't know it. Goolledge ran down to me and said, 'You drive her up to his shore.' He stayed by me till the steam gauge was showing all she'd stand, and more, too, and then he went on deck again."

"As luck would have it, we were steaming across the line of a scout-ship. I looked out and saw the smoke north by northeast and made up my mind that the stranger would pass astern of us. I kept an eye out the porthole, and when she came within sight I saw a signal flying for us to leave to. Goolledge didn't dare risk an inspection and paid no attention to it. The cruiser came on, but was only two knots better than us and gained slowly. I didn't know that she was ordered to overhaul everything she met, and I was afraid she'd get tired of the chase, so I contrived to loosen a screw and let go a rod, then called Goolledge and told him I'd have to stop the engine a few minutes and fix it or the thing would break up. If I hadn't been necessary to him, he would have killed me right there, but instead he told me he'd give me just five minutes to fix it after stopping and held his watch in one hand and a pistol in the other. I kept asking him the time, blundering as well as I could without his seeing me do it, until he called four minutes. Then I screwed her up and started on. I hadn't more than done so when a shot went skipping before our bows, and I made up my mind we'd be overhauled. I heard Goolledge come below and go into Mr. Chippindale's stateroom, which he'd appropriated to his own use, and in a few minutes there was the report of a pistol. I went to the room, looked in and saw the pirate giving his last gasp."

"I hurried on deck, and there in the distance was a fleet of war vessels, and the cruiser that had been following us had turned to join them. Seizing Goolledge's glass lying on one of the quarter deck wicker chairs, I leveled it and saw the flagship of the fleet signaling the cruiser to come in."

"When it was known that the captain had blown out his brains, two of the crew came to me and said they had been taken when Goolledge was short handed and had joined to escape walking the plank. They said they would have hard work to get clear if taken. The others were tired of the business. They proposed that if I would run the yacht ashore and destroy her I might go free. As there was nothing else to do and I was in the same boat with the others, I consented. A few days after Dewey captured Manila we landed on the island, burned the yacht and making our way to Manila, enlisted in the American army."

"I see," said one of the listeners. "Why the affair never got into the newspapers?"

"Just so," remarked the narrator. "And mind you keep dark about it."

COSTLY FURS.

Mole-skin Coats Are the Latest Extravagance.

Furs will be more costly than ever during the coming season, for the coarse furs which have been so much worn during the last few years will be reserved for what may be termed rough wear, as motor coats and gowns, and the finest pelts only—red mink, chinchilla, golden beaver and mole-skin—are being used for the coats alone. Sack coats of Alaska seal have huge cape collars of Russian sable fashioned.

PALE GREEN CREPE DE CHINE.

In graceful curves, and they are lined with rich brocades. Other smart coats of seal are in the Russian blouse shape, with perfectly cut busques, long or short, and big collars of sable, mink or chinchilla.

In some cases the coats are further ornamented with belts of snede or kid daintily embroidered, some with turquoises and silver and others with oriental silk and gold thread embroidery.

Perhaps the most costly garments are those of mole-skin, for several hundreds of these tiny skins go to the making of one Russian blouse, and the woman who owns a coat of this has the satisfaction of knowing she does not possess a commonplace garment.

The dress illustrated is of pale green crepe de chine trimmed with white chiffon and pale yellow lace.

THE NEW COATS.

Some Are Made Without Collars—Velvet Trimmings.

One of the most sensible innovations in women's attire will be the making of coats this autumn without a collar band, and in fact high collars will be dispensed with. This allows dainty jabots and ties to be worn, and the fur or feather tie sits comfortably over the collarless coat.

The new coat sleeves are very desirable, as they are large and voluminous and caught in at the wrists, leaving wide frills to fall over the hands. These are wearable over the most elaborate dress sleeves.

Velvet will again be fashionable for trimmings during the autumn, and very elegant effects are obtained by using beaver and mink velvet on mastic pale fawn and antelope tints, a touch of brighter color appearing in the front. Handsome checked and plaid velvets are also used in Paris for boleros and vests. On a plain cloth gown a vest and undersleeves of lace plaid give quite a distinguished air.

A smart tailor made coat suitable for a young girl is here shown. The material is rich velvet marked with a hair stripe and deep blue in tone. The collar is faced with a blue velvet, and for trimming there is the noted ruffle set on cape fashion, and from under a strap.

Music That Leads to Divorce Courts.

"The kind of music that is provided for the people is largely responsible for the marital infidelity now so common," said the Rev. Chester Gore Miller in a recent sermon at St. Paul's Universalist church, Jamaica Plain, says a Boston dispatch. He was referring particularly to social conditions in New York city. Mr. Miller continued:

"It is not the words so much, although they help, but the character of the music that is responsible for this condition. It is the same thing in all the concert and music halls, practically the debasement of music."

"Music in itself is not bad, but this one kind over and over again all the time has its influence on the people. Its sensuous strains finally fill the habitual listener with new desires."

IEWS OF BERESFORD.

THINKS BRITISH FORCES IMPROVED

Both Army and Navy Better Since War in South Africa—Submarine Boats, He Says, Are an Unknown Quantity—Uncertainty in Great Britain About the Shipping Combine.

Rear Admiral Lord Charles Beresford of the British navy, who arrived in New York the other day, was asked for his opinion on various topics and talked at some length on armies and navies, naval maneuvers and the shipping combine. He said:

"I have no more criticisms to make on our army and navy. They have improved greatly since the South African war. I think the world learned by the Boer war of what great value movable heavy guns are. No country had ever been able before to do what we did—take heavy guns from warships and use them in the field."

"The latest additions to our navy, submarine boats, are largely an unknown quantity. What we have to be careful of is not to underestimate them, then again, overrate them. We have five of these vessels, I think, and are using two types, one of which is the Holland. If the submarine boat turns out to be a success, it means the key to the situation in the channel as far as England is concerned. The only trouble with them now is that they are not able to take care of themselves. They have to be carried on warships from place to place. Warships in action need all the room they can get."

"When you ask me about the shipping combine, I must confess that we are a little frightened. Not at the probabilities, however, but at the possibilities of such a combination of interests. It is ridiculous to talk of England forming a rival combination. We cannot compete with your railways, and it is well known that it is the through rate that pays. England would not establish a bounty or subsidy on her ships, for if she did you could put up a million of pounds to every thousand of ours. Then again you have 80,000,000 people here and unlimited means."

"Naval fighting is like army fighting. On shore you have the infantry, which can be compared with the small vessels. The field guns can be likened to the cruisers and the heavy artillery to the battleships. Forage wagons take the place of transports, and so on."

"It is not true that we are short of men in the British navy. We can get all the men we want. Our burden of antiquated ships is also greatly exaggerated. We have a few old timers, but are gradually getting rid of them. I must admit, however, that France has gone ahead of us in the fact that she has taken her old ships and remodeled them."

"I cannot make any comparison as to the superiority of guns over armor, or vice versa. While a shell might be able to penetrate a plate of armor set in a direct frontal position, a slight deflection of the armor plate would render the shot almost useless. That is why, in time of war, so few of the shells fired at a vessel cause great damage. Small armor cannot be recommended too highly, however. A bursting shell, which used to kill a great number of people, has been rendered less dangerous by this small armor, which catches the flying pieces."

"The target practice in which our battleships the Majestic and Terrible sunk the Belleisle taught us a lot about the different types of battleships and their respective usefulness. Fixed mortar batteries are, in my opinion, of no value shooting at a moving target. No, I do not think they could hit a ship moving at the rate of eighteen knots an hour or even at fourteen knots."

Secret of Her Age Revealed.

The mystery of the age of Miss Harriet Blaine Cole of Cranbury, a cousin of the late James G. Blaine, was solved the other day, says a Trenton (N. J.) dispatch, when her effects were sold at auction. The eccentric woman would never tell her age and had cut the date of her birth from the family Bible in the house.

She died recently, leaving a fine collection of old books and bric-a-brac, which was sold at auction. Among the books sold was a small Bible which contained her name and the date of her birth, establishing her age as ninety-five years. Her boast that no one would ever know her age while she lived was correct, but her assertion that even when she was dead it was not to be learned proved incorrect. Among the books and papers sold were some autograph notes from James G. Blaine.

LOST LODE'S HERO

[Copyright, 1902, by the S. S. McClure Company.]

Tommy Duncan had been bad—so bad that he had to "stay in." But, then, he lived in the Lost Lode, the tough district of the big Montana mining town, so he was expected to be bad. Robbie Jones had called him a "low down Lost Lode" when Marjorie Forbes was listening, and Tommy had promptly retaliated, causing a howling commotion in the second grade.

Hence the present uneasy hour of solitude while he waited for teacher to bring the principal to chastise him for his sins after teachers' meeting upstairs. Tommy pressed his hot little head against the cold window pane and listened lonesomely to the loud ticking of the clock. His stepmother would beat him when he got home late, he knew. The twilight of the short mountain day was closing in.

Tommy's heavy little heart rose in his throat as he aimlessly gathered snow from the window sill into little balls. Suddenly he caught his breath in a half choked sob, hearing voices outside. Forgetting his tears, he peered cautiously over the window ledge. Two dark forms lurked in the shadow of the wide front steps.

"Let's get outter th' wind fer a minute," growled one. "Sure he ain't come yet?"

"Dead cert'ing," nodded the other, whose evil eyes, besotted and bleared by drink, eagerly watched the hill road which ran down from the Perritt mine on the hill to the smelter below.

"He's got the dusty with him, ain't he, Dan?"

"Shet up yer fool questions, Bill!" rumbled Dan, with an oath. "Ef ye're gettin' cold feet, ye can vamoose. I'm goin' ter stay right up thar by thet shack till I get a whack at Rob Perritt an' thet lot o' swag he's got with 'im. I'll git even with 'im fer kickin' me down them mill stairs ef I hev ter kill 'im!"

"But I don't keer ter kill 'im out-right of a good clubb'n' 'il do th' biz proper," deprecated his companion.

"Well, ef ye're goin' ter be so chicken-livered all'er it ye can bin' on'y one, an' I'll do th' rest. Let's git out o' this an' hide behin' th' shack ready fer 'im. We'll see who does th' kickin' now!"

JERRY THE FOOL

Redmond O'Hanlon, the highway-
man, was especially fond of levying on landlords who were hard on their tenants. There was one of this class whom Redmond never lost an opportunity of taxing. Every quarter day this gentleman or one of his servants—
sometimes more than one—used to take a journey of six or seven miles to collect his rents, and as regular as clock-
work there was Redmond O'Hanlon, with some stout companion. If necessary, to waylay the collector as he returned home. So one quarter day, when the gentleman's servants asked him about going for the rents, he swore at O'Hanlon and said he didn't see the use of collecting money to hand it over to him.

Now, this gentleman had on his estate a boy called "Jerry the Fool," who had the run of the house and made fun
for the family. He had a great conceit for himself, and when he heard what the master said he immediately asked to be allowed to go after the rents for once and declared he would know the way to bring them home. Of course he was only laughed at, but when he represented that no harm would come from trying, as he couldn't do worse than all who had gone before him, the master agreed to humor him. Upon that Jerry made such preparations as he thought suitable, chose the worst horse in the stable, an old hack half blind and three-quarters lame, and started on his enterprise. Nothing occurred on the way. He collected a considerable amount of money, carefully disposed of it about his person and started homeward.

Toward evening, he was quietly jogging along on the old hack and was just entering a long lane with high hedges on each side, a tall, fine looking man rode up to him on a handsome roun mare.

"God save you, my man," says the gentleman.

"God save your honor," replies Jerry.
"What's your name, my man?" asks
the gentleman.

"Jerry the Fool, and I ain't ashamed of
it. What's yours?"

The gentleman took no notice of the question. After awhile he says, "That is a fine animal you're riding, Jerry."

"Faith, I'm glad your honor likes it," said Jerry. "But it isn't myself
that'd care to take a lease of his life."

But he'd serve my turn anyway, for it's not in a hurry I'm traveling. I've only been to the village beyond to collect the master's rents for him."

"Surely he's not such a fool as to trust you with that job?"

"Arrah, why not?" asks Jerry in great surprise.

"Why, don't you know that Redmond O'Hanlon is on this road?"

"Redmond O'Hanlon, is it?" says Jerry.
"Ugh! That for Redmond O'Hanlon!" says he, snapping his finger.

"Faix, Jerry the Fool is a match for half a dozen of the likes of him any day in the week and Sunday into the bargain."

The stranger laughed and then rode on in silence till they came to a very lonely part of the road, when he drew a brace of pistols and told Jerry to hand over all the money he had about him or he'd try if he had any brains
by sending a couple of bullets through his head.

"Meal a murder!" roars Jerry in surprise and fright. "You don't mean to say your honor's Redmond O'Hanlon?"

"I do indeed. So hand over, my man, and look sharp about it."

"But, faix, it's kilt entirely by the master I'll be when I get home without the rent."

"What's that to me?" said O'Hanlon.
"Anyhow," said Jerry, "I must show them that I made a murdering fight for it. Perhaps your honor wouldn't mind firing a shot through my old beaver."

O'Hanlon did so, laughing at the trick.

"And now another through the breast of my coat, and heaven bless you." This was done. "Now just one in the skirt of it, and good luck to your honor."

"But I've discharged both my pistols and don't want the trouble of loading them again for you."

"Faix, I should dearly like a shot through the skirts. It would show I fought desperate. Are you sure your honor hasn't another pistol in your pocket that you wouldn't mind firing
for a poor boy's sake?"

"Confound you! To be sure I haven't.
Hand over the money or I'll beat you to jelly with my horsewhip."

"Well," said Jerry after a good deal of fumbling, "I suppose, considering the trouble I've had in collecting these rents, your honor won't mind the little bother of going over the hedge after them."

And he threw over a sack, apparently well filled with coin. Half laughing, half angry, the highwayman, first aiming at Jerry with his whip, which he avoided by ducking, dismounted and climbed over the hedge, and no sooner had he done so than Jerry slipped off
the old hack and mounted O'Hanlon's horse.

"Bad seran to you, Redmond O'Han-lon!" he howled. "Didn't I tell you Jerry the Fool was a match for a dozen of you? It's a sack of brass buttons you've gone over the hedge after, you thief of the world!" And,

he galloped off, singing the old melody,
"Go to the mischief and shake yourself."

Denison Wins First Game.

Denison University opened her football season Saturday with a victory over a team picked from the battalion of the 20th regiment, U. S. Infantry, who were in camp at the State ground
last week.

The playing of Denison was very encouraging to those who are looking after the team's interests, the playing offensive and defensive being very strong for so early in the season. The bright particular feature was a 90 yard run for a touch down by Log-ridge. The playing of the soldiers was clean and sportsmanlike throughout the contest. The score was 29 to 0 and the teams lined up as follows:

Denison. Pos. 20th Reg.
Center.

Hixson ..... Morrison
Right Guard.

Patterson ..... Atchinson
Left Guard.

Howell ..... Cornelius
Right Tackle.

Logridge—Jones ..... Profit

Cherney ..... Kleevers

Weimer—Nichols ..... Clay

Sprouell—Johnson ..... Davis
Touchdowns. Larue, Roudebush, Log-ridge, Shutz, Weimer.

Big Teams Scored On.

There were several surprised football coaches of big western 'varsity eleven Saturday. The first was given to Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago, whose team played the Lombard high school. Thirteen minutes before the close of the second half, Jansen, the tackle for Lombard, broke through the maroon line, and getting away from two tacklers, who hit him
at the same time, each with force, enough to break the other's hold, ran forty-two yards for a touch down. The crowd of sportsmen undergraduates cheered the lucky player. The final score was 27 to 6.

The North Division High school has one of the strongest eleven in Chicago.
They played the University of Illinois at Urbana Saturday afternoon, and Stephens, their right end, electrified
the coaches, players and spectators by getting around the State University's right wing, and making a sensational run of forty-five yards for a touchdown. The final score was 34 to 6, and the playing of the 'varsity team was very satisfactory. Both Chicago and Illinois have had their goal lines crossed and thus far any record made by them will be marred.

Northwestern University beat the team from Fort Sheridan barracks by a score of 15 to 0, in a well contested game of twenty and fifteen minute halves.

Western Foot Ball Outlook.

While the two best teams last season in the west were undoubtedly Wisconsin and Michigan, many football critics look for Stagg of Chicago, and Knipe of Iowa to spring a surprise.
Both have veteran teams and plenty of new material of promising kind. Illinois, Minnesota and Northwestern will also have strong teams.

Eastern Foot Ball Prospects.

In the east, with the exception of Yale, there are no particularly promising prospects. At Harvard there is a scarcity of big men, Princeton's team
is an unknown quantity, while Yale
will have a team of giants, the line averaging over 195 pounds, and they are quick and active.

There are eight veterans at Cornell and Coach Reed expects no trouble in filling the three vacant positions, as the promising 1901 subs have returned.

The Pennsylvania squad are in good shape, and will return from preliminary training at Eagle Mere next week.
There is nothing known about the team.

EAST NEWARK FOOTBALL.

The East Newark Athletic Club's football team was organized Saturday
as follows: Center, Evans; guards, Lahle and Horn; tackles, Cohn and Mullins; ends, Fisher and Adkins;
quarterback, Wm. Martin; half back, Martin and Allison; fullback, Tucker;
substitutes, Gore, Maxwell and Kennett. Mr. George Tucker is manager and Raymond Martin, captain.

Both Accused of Professionalism.

Michigan and Chicago are engaged in an unseemly squabble over Clarence Hall and Paul Dickey, the Chicago
High School foot ball stars, and each hints at professionalism of the other.
The boys will probably be found at Michigan this year.

Newark Athletic Club.

All members of foot ball squad will meet at the corner of Church and Ninth streets tonight at 7 o'clock for practice. H. A. Allen, Manager.

Sporting Notes.

Pittsburg by winning the second game at St. Louis Sunday reached the century mark in the number of games won.

The largest crowd that ever attended a base ball game in Philadelphia saw the Athletics win from Boston on Saturday, in a pitchers' battle between Plank and Sparks.

Heir Born on the Gould Yacht Friday.

New York, Sept. 22—Helen will be the name given to the latest Gould heir, a girl who was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gould on Friday aboard
the yacht of her parents, the Helenita, lying at anchor in the sound off Orster Bay.

By the bestowal of the name that of both the mother and Mr. Gould's sister, Miss Helen Gould, will be perpetuated for another generation in the family.

As soon as Mrs. Gould regains her health the Helenita will bear away
the family on a long winter cruise in the Mediterranean. Most of the time of Mr. and Mrs. Gould has been spent on the yacht this summer.

Mrs. Gould was Miss Helen Keller,
a daughter of Commodore Edward Kelley, who was a son of Eugene Kelley, the banker. She and Mr. Gould were married on December 2 last. Mr.
Gould is the youngest son of Jay Gould, from whom he inherited a fortune of about $10,000,000.

UNDERTAKERS

Want to be Relieved of the Corpse of an Infant Who Died Four Years Ago.

Owensboro, Ky., September 22—The Owensboro Undertakers' Association has a strange case to deal with. A little child of A. M. White, a veterinary surgeon, who lived here, died in the spring of 1898, and it was sent to Robert Tennely an undertaker, to be prepared for burial. When it was em-balled the parents had no money to pay the undertaker, who refused to give it up.

The body remained in Tennely's establishment until a few weeks ago,
when it passed to the Owensboro Undertakers' Association, which bought Tennely out. The present proprietors desire to get rid of the body, but there is no one to take it.

At the time Tennely refused to give the body to its parents a Louisville paper published an account of it,
which resulted in an important damage suit, and a judgment for Tennely for $5,000. The parents of the child are no longer here, and the Owensboro Undertakers' Association has a baby
on hand that has been dead for more than four years.

McLean On Panama Situation.

Washington, Sept. 22—Commander
McLean of the U. S. steamship Cincinnati, has informed the navy department by cable that he has complete control of the situation on the isthmus of Panama. From the tone of his dispatch it is evident, according to officials, at the navy department,
forces for the Colombian government have recognized the authority of the United States over traffic across the isthmus. His dispatch dated Colon, Sept. 20, follows:

"The United States guards and guarantees traffic and the line of travel. Today I permitted the exchange of Colombian troops from Panama to Colon, about 1,000 men
each way, the troops without arms in train guarded by American naval force in the same manner as other passengers; arms and ammunition in separate trains guarded also by naval force in the same manner as other freight."

WEDDING

OF FIRE CHIEF BAUSCH IN PHIL-ADELPHIA

To Miss Jessie Engleman, Who is a Niece of Mrs. George Busch—To Return This Week.

It will be remembered that Mr.
Louis Bausch, the popular chief of the Newark Fire department, left for the east a few days ago. It has just leaked out that the principal object
of his trip was to get married.

Word has been received by his sister, Mrs. Philip Nies, that Mr. Bausch was married to Miss Jessie Engleman, daughter of Mr. Jacob Engleman of Philadelphia, and the ceremony took place at the home of the bride's father on September 16.

The bride, who is a niece of Mr.
George Busch, of this city, is well known in Newark, having visited here on several occasions. Three years ago she made an extended visit with Mrs. Nies. She is a charming young woman. Mr. and Mrs. Bausch are expected home this week and will reside for a short time with Mrs. Nies on South Fourth street.

EX. GOV. BOISE

Issues His Letter Accepting the Democratic Nomination for Congress to Succeed Henderson.

Waterloo, Iowa, Sept. 22—Former Governor Boise today issued his letter formally accepting the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Third District in which Speaker Henderson has served for 20 years.

This letter contains a detailed treatment of the tariff question, and practically nothing else. Henderson is not mentioned. Governor Boise said:
"I shall take stand on tariff revision, not advocating free trade, but radical changes in many of the present schedules. I propose this as a relief from the trusts which are crushing Iowa. I am simply more radical than Republican revisionists."

FUNERALS

Of Victims of Birmingham Panic—Ballou, Charged With Starting Stampede, Is In Jail.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 22.—Sunday was a day of funerals in Birmingham, the remains of 23 victims of the panic being interred in the various cemetaries for negroes around the city.

The death list is now known to number 105 and 100 of these have been identified. The police assert that in addition at least five bodies were taken to private houses. This would swell
the number to 110.

In nearly all of the churches for whites sums were raised to assist the negroes who are unable to give their dead proper burial.

J. H. Ballou who is in jail charged with precipitating the stampede, says
he does not feel responsible for the accident.

"I am no stranger in Birmingham and fear no harm. I could give bond but my friends advise me to stay in prison for my own safety."

AMUSEMENTS.

Denman Thompson and Geo. W. Ryer's new rural comedy of New England life, "Our New Minister," which is now in its second year, will be presented at the Auditorium this evening.
This is the first play dealing entirely with country life that the authors of "The Old Homestead" have produced
since that dramatic evergreen first saw the light of day seventeen years ago. "Our New Minister" is a distinct novelty and one that will doubtless hold the stage for a long time to come.
Both Mr. Thompson and Mr. Ryer found the subject an easy one to write upon, but the chief difficulty lay in fitting it to the public mind, which is as changeable as a thermometer and very hard to please. The scene is laid in a small country town known as Hardscrabble, N. H., and the character drawings are from life. It will be presented by the original cast, and a superb scenic production.

(Communicated.)

The Advocate's telegraphic item of Sept. 16 headed "No charter granted to the Scientists" refers to a Philadelphia judge who had refused a church charter to the Christian Scientists of that city because he feared, in his conservative zeal, that a little business was combined with the religion of the applicants. Now, almost any church has some business to do, in the spread of its doctrines as well as the building of its churches, raising of money, and distribution of its literature. But the decision, the judge's sword—cuts both ways—and while confined to the letter of the law—the pound of flesh alone—it may delight the Shylock enemies of Christian Science. Yet that sword or knife can not be even applied in practice, without taking blood, if not life, out of other denominations. For instance, the Methodist church (and others might be named) has at least three large and flourishing book concerns, whose sole business is to manufacture and sell, at a profit, the doctrinal books, &c. of that denomination—and each annual report prides itself on the amount of money made thereby for the church. Half a dozen Christian Advocates, involving a large amount of worldly business, are published and sold by subscription annually, and even worldly premiums are offered to increase those subscriptions. Now, if the union of business with religion is a violation of law in Pennsylvania that is a matter for the grand jury of that state to consider, and a special reason why Methodist churches should be denied charters and those already granted be forfeited by quo warranto proceedings.

Would the people of Pennsylvania say: "Most noble judge! if the knife of Judge Arnold were made to draw other than Christian Science blood? But the Christian Science church is doing only what other churches are doing, from a business standpoint, and what all churches of any real importance to mankind have a right to do—print, sell, and distribute—with or without profit—its own denominational literature. All the monies made on Christian Science literature goes to the support and uses of the church—and so long as those who buy the literature do not complain, no one else has a good right to do so.

In the C. S. Church Manual (1901 edition) it is distinctly stated that only those "who can afford it" are urged to subscribe for the periodicals of the church. It sounds very queer for a judge to enjoin a church from transacting business—for its own support—when the cry of the age is why do not Christians carry their religion into their business?

Towns Near Newark

Croton, O., Sept. 21.—The Hartford Central Agricultural Board met Saturday afternoon to allow orders and transact other business. The receipts of the fair were found to be near $2,100. This will leave a nice balance in the treasury after all expenses are paid. The board ordered the interest and $400 on the principal of the debt paid. This will cut the debt down to $800. The board is pleased with this year's work.

ZANESVILLE SALOONS SHUT.

Zanesville, O., Sept. 22.—All saloons in the city were closed Sunday as a result of an order issued by Mayor Holden. The Mayor is now on the outs with the City Council, having preferred charges with the Police Committee against Chief of Police Tracey and the committee has so far ignored the charges.

Simon Linser, who is chairman of the Police Committee, is owner of Zanesville's largest brewery, and the action of Mayor Holden is an admitted slap at Mr. Linser. The officer who served notices on the saloonists to close up Sunday likewise notified Mr. Linser that he must keep his beer wagons off the street after 12 o'clock that day. Other breweries did not receive the same orders, it is claimed.

"Where Ignorance Is Bliss"

(Original.)

A young man stood with his hand on the latch of a house in the country, admired the cheerful appearance of the place, then knocked and was admitted by an old man.

"You are Deacon Merivale, are you not?" asked the visitor.

"Speak louder. I am hard of hearing."

"Are you Deacon Merivale?" the questioner repeated, raising his voice. Still he was unheard and shouted the question in the man's ear.

"Yes; my name's Merivale."

"You had a son, Edgar, who ran away and—"

"Edgar? What do you know about Edgar?"

"I am Edgar's."

"You Edgar? Can it be that my son has come home to be with me during the last few years I have to live?"

"I was going to say that I am Edgar's."

"My boy! My boy!" sobbed the old man, falling on the stranger's neck.

Meanwhile the two had drifted from the hall into the living room. As the visitor looked over the old man's shoulder a door opened, and he saw the face and figure of a young girl on the threshold. The situation was awkward.

The deacon did not see the girl or hear her. She looked at the newcomer for an explanation.

"He thinks I'm Edgar," he said.

A quick intelligence passed over the girl's face.

"Don't try to dissuade his mind," she said. "He has been talking of my brother continually of late. His mistake may turn out a fortunate one."

This was a great relief to the supposed son. Now that the responsibility was on another he resigned himself to play his part.

"Father, forgive me," he said, with feigned emotion.

The old man raised his head and saw his daughter.

"Emily," he cried, "Edgar, your brother, has returned to us."

Here was a new embarrassment. Any brother returning from a long absence would naturally take his sister in his arms for an affectionate embrace. Any sister would naturally fly to the arms of her brother. Yet these two stood apart.

"Daughter," said the old man severely, "I have forgiven Edgar. It is my wish that you welcome him home."

The spurious Edgar advanced penitently and, gently putting his arms about the girl, who blushed red as a rose, kissed her.

That night after the old man had gone to bed, thankfulness in his heart at the return of his son, the stranger told Emily Merivale the story he had tried to tell her father. Edgar Merivale and Frank Tucker were joint prospectors in Colorado. Having acquired a valuable mine, it was decided that Tucker should go east and organize a company to work it. Just before Tucker left Merivale died, having charged his partner to bear the news to his father and sister. Emily dared not at present announce it to her father. She determined to advise her neighbors of the deception and for the present keep it up.

Tucker was successful in his business efforts and was making preparations to leave for the west. One evening Deacon Merivale entered the living room suddenly to find Emily in Tucker's arms.

"It beats all," he said at a church so late the next evening, "what brotherly and sisterly love there is between my boy and girl. Last night they were sitting on the sofa hugging and kissing as if they'd been a pair of freshly batched loaves."

This speech was not long in getting to the ears of the pair. What was to be done? After long deliberation they decided to be privately married and, telling the old man that Edgar desired his sister to go west with him, take their departure together.

It was not an easy matter to perpetrate an act that must be known to all the world save one person and be of the nearest relationship, but the place was small, and every one thought it would be a pity to break the news of Edgar's death to the old man, he supposing his son had come home to him.

It made Emily's heart bleed to leave her father alone, but there was no way to avoid doing so except by a confession. The couple were married in the deacon's study, then went home and bade adieu to the father.

From their western home they wrote the deacon that the mine was doing famously and as soon as its success was assured they would bring him out to join them or return to him. His neighbors were much interested in hearing the old man talk about his children's affection for each other—so great, in fact, as to render them inseparable. But as time passed and they neither returned nor sent for him he concluded to make them a visit. He disappeared one day, and his neighbors at once inferred where he had gone. It was generally admitted in the village that the secret would be out, but all hoped that the stock would not break the old man's heart. In a few weeks it was announced that he had returned. The first person to meet him was the deacon.

"Well, deacon," asked the latter, "have you visited the runaways?"

"Yes," replied the deacon, "and found them prosperous and happy. But nature will have its way. Emily, to make up for her sacrifice in devoting her life to her brother, has adopted the habit of eating over seaweed."

A few months later the deacon died, happy in his children's happiness. The funeral sermon bore upon doing evil that good may come.

PASSED AWAY SUNDAY AT HIS HOME

After a Long Illness—A Long and Useful Life Comes to a Close. Funeral Tuesday.

One of Newark's most prominent and highly esteemed citizens passed away about 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning, when Mr. P. F. Rhoads, breathed his last at his home, 74 Granville street, after an illness since last May with Bright's disease, the last six weeks of which time he had been confined to his bed.

The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon from the residence, the services being conducted by Rev. Geo. W. Van Fossen, rector of Trinity Episcopal church. The friends of the family are invited to attend these services.

Peter F. Rhoads was born in Spring City, Pa., March 16, 1834, being aged 68 years, 6 months and 4 days at the time of his death. He came to Newark when a young man, in 1856, and for a period of 46 years has lived continuously in this city, where he was honored and trusted in family, social, and business circles.

In 1864, June 23, he was married to Miss Louisa Rodgers in Newark, and of this union there are two children living, Miss Lillian Rhoads, and Mrs. Kemper Scott, both of this city.

He was married a second time, March 17, 1874, to Mrs. Eliza Friedman, who died January 17, 1901. Two children are living of this marriage, Miss Bess Rhoads, principal of the South Third street public school building, and Charles F. Rhoads of the firm of P. F. Rhoads & Son. One step daughter, Mrs. Harry J. Hoover, also survives.

Mr. Rhoads was for a number of years a member of Newark Lodge No. 97, F. & A. M., Warren Chapter, No. 6, R. A. M., Bigelow Council No. 7, R. & S. M., and Bayard Taylor Council, 221, Royal Arcanum.

Since his residence in Newark, Mr. Rhoads has been prominently identified with the merchant tailoring business. He was first a member of the firm of Friedman & Rhoads, and was then for a number of years in business for himself, afterward forming a partnership with D. M. Moore, now of Columbus. Later the firm of Rhoads & Smucker was formed and conducted successfully for several years. When the deceased and William Christian formed a partnership, the firm of Rhoads & Christian being a leading merchant tailoring establishment until recently when it was dissolved. Mr. Rhoads going in business with his son in the Y. M. C. A. building, where he engaged up until his death.

P. F. Rhoads was as well known as any man in Newark, and none stood higher in the public esteem as a man of strictest integrity and fair dealing. He was pre-eminently a man of domestic tastes, and although prominent in Newark social circles, it was in the family circle that he found his highest pleasure and enjoyment. His death marks the closing of a career, entirely successful from every standpoint of true manliness and right living, and the line that he lived could well be emulated in its ideals and good works.

Birds In Indian Legends.

All primitive people regard the birds specially wise and favored. Living in the air, he is regarded as exercising control over atmospheric phenomena, and, knowing so well his own migratory seasons, the Indians observe his flights as foreboding ill or good to themselves.

The Hurons believe that the dove carries the souls of the departed birds. The Dakotas say the storm bird dwells so high as to be out of human vision and carries a fresh water lake on his back, so that when he plumes himself it rains, when he winks his bright eyes it lightens, when he flaps his wings thunder rolls. The Algonquins hold much the same idea about the "Thunderbird."

Among them all the eagle is mighty, brave, aspiring, the symbol of their warriors for apparent reason. The blackfish is anxious to serve his brother man.

Rosy and Profanity.

When the computer and not infrequently the poet, is in a bad mood, he is inclined to use a very forcible oath. With a man who is so inclined, the words of God, and on such occasions he is inclined to use the "four-letter" word, and he always takes the place of swearing in the case of St. Joseph Peter, K. C. B. After Wilbur's time the rulers of England, with possibly one or two exceptions, swore with great frequency and vigor. It is related that even Queen Elizabeth, whose urbanity does not belie a fiery temper, would break into a string of expletives that would rattle the royal windows and frighten the household and royal attendants from all sense of diplomatic reserve.—London Leader.

THEY DRINK SEA WATER.

Cockatoos and Wild Pigeons Do Not Seem to Mind It.

"In 1881, while resident on Gazelle peninsula, the northern portion of the magnificent island of New Britain, in the south Pacific, I had many opportunities of witnessing both cockatoos and wild pigeons drinking salt water. I was stationed at a place called Kaba, the then 'farthest out' trading station on the whole island, and as I had but little work to do I found plenty of time to study bird life in the vicinity. Parrots of several varieties, all of beautiful plumage, were plentiful, and great flocks of white cockatoos frequented the rolling, grassy downs which lay between my home and the German head station in Blanche bay, twenty miles distant, while the heavy frost of the littoral was the haunt of thousands of pigeons. These pigeons, though not so large as the Samoan or eastern Polynesian bird, formed an agreeable change of diet for us white traders, and by walking about fifty yards from one's door half a dozen or more could be shot in as many minutes.

"My nearest neighbor was a German, and one day when we were walking along the beach toward his station I noticed some hundreds of pigeons fly down from the forest, settle on the margin of the water and drink with apparent enjoyment. The harbor at this spot being almost landlocked and the water as smooth as glass and without the faintest ripple, the birds were enabled to drink without wetting their plumage. My neighbor, who had lived many years in New Britain, told me that this drinking of sea water was common to both cockatoos and pigeons alike, and that on some occasions the cockatoos not only drinking, but bathing, and apparently enjoying themselves greatly. During the next six months, especially when the weather was calm and rainy, I frequently noticed pigeons and cockatoos come to the salt water to drink.

"At first I thought that as fresh water in many places bubbled up through the sand at low tide the birds were not really drinking the sea water, but by watching closely I distinctly saw them walk across these tiny runnels without making any attempt to drink. Then, too, the whole of the Gazelle peninsula is cut up by countless streams of water, and rain falls throughout the year as a rule. What causes this unusual habit of drinking sea water? Another peculiarity of the New Britain and New Ireland pigeon is its fondness for the chili pepper berry. During three months of the year, when these berries are ripe, the birds' crops are full of them, and often their flesh is so pungent and smells so strongly of the chili as to be quite unpalatable."—Chambers' Journal.

THE BOY GIANT HATED TO GO TO BED EARLY

Copyright, 1900, by Caroline Wetherell

One time when the moon hid its light
An Golem from his bed at midnight
Stole away through the dark,
Quite bent on a lark,
But instead got a terrible fright.
It happened that country lads eight
Held Jack of the Lantern's queer fate,
And some pumpkins immense
They hung over a fence
To frighten pedestrians late.

When the giant beheld the display,
Intense was his youthful dismay,
For each goblinlike face
Seemed to nod and grimace
And the giant—he frowned away.
The culprit's small guardian Jack
His charge found stretched out on his back;
Grim vowed to be good,
Go to bed as he should,
And thus escape scolding and thwack.

The Little Coat.
Here's his little "roundabout,"
Turn the pockets inside out;
See his penknife, lost to use,
Rusted shut with apple juice.
Here, with marbles, top and string,
Is his deadly "devil sling."
With his rubber limp at last
As the sparrows of the past!
Broom, bucket, leather straps,
Bullets and a box of caps.
Not a thing at all, I guess,
But betrays some waywardness;
Even these tickets, blue and red,
For the Bible verses said:
Such as this his memory kept—
"Jesus wept."

Here's the little coat; but, oh,
Where is he with his roundabout?
Don't you hear us calling, dear?
Back! Come back and never fear!
You may wander where you will,
Over orchard, field and hill.
You may kill the birds or do Anything that please you.
Ah, this empty coat of just Every tatter worth a kiss!
Every stain as pure as gold
As the white stars overhead,
And the pockets, home, were they
Of the little hands that play?
Now no more, but absent, thus Becken us.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

As Infant Market.
The orphanage at Temesvar, in Hungary, holds an "infant market" once a month, at which all the children at the orphanage are on view and at which persons desirous of adopting one or more of them can inspect them and take their choice. The first of these markets passed off very successfully, says Pearson's Weekly. Thirty children were on view, boys and girls between the ages of one and ten years. Nineteen of them were adopted, five boys and fourteen girls. Most of them were adopted by fairly well to do people, and one foster mother went at once to a lawyer's office and made her newly adopted child heiress to her fortune of $100,000.

Sagacious Bird.
Mexico has a clever bird called the malanperes, which has discovered a new use for the telegraph pole. At the foot of the post this bird makes a large hole, in which it rears its family. Somewhat higher up the pole it makes an observatory, from which it looks holes permit it to observe the horizon in every direction. Still higher this sagacious bird makes its storehouse, and thus the pole serves as its home, fortress and warehouse.

MR. BOWSER'S NATAL DAY

Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.

MR. BOWSER figured on giving Mrs. Bowser a little surprise the other morning as he quietly observed:
"Perhaps I've got a birthday as well as other folks, though you don't seem to have remembered it."
"I've had it in mind for a week," replied Mrs. Bowser, "and have been wondering how we could celebrate the day. Yes; you are fifty-seven years old today, and I can't—"
"Fifty-seven!" he shouted as he wheeled on her. "Where in thunder did you get your information that I was an antediluvian?"
"But fifty-seven isn't old."
"It's a blamed sight older'n I am! I'm exactly fifty-three years old today."

THE GAS METER MAN CAME ALONG WITH HIS BILL.

If I know anything about it. How did you get the idea that I was fifty-seven?"

"I—I don't know, unless it was from the family record in the Bible."

"Does that record say I'm fifty-seven years old?"

"I—I believe so."

"Then it's a blamed old lying record, and it shows what kind of a woman you are that you go snooping around and sticking your nose into other people's business!"

"But even if you are fifty-seven you don't look a day older than forty," she said, hoping to mollify him. "A man at fifty-seven is only middle aged."

"Keep harping on fifty-seven, will you! Didn't I say I was only fifty-three?"

"Well, fifty-three, then, and now let's make a happy day of it. Mrs. Shaw was asking me the other day if you had turned forty-five yet, and she said she had often noticed your springy walk and cheery way."

This was a white lie, of course, but Mr. Bowser chirped up and breakfast was a success. He had decided to make a holiday of it, and the question arose as to where they should go. It had been settled that they would take a trolley ride into the country and chase lambskins—when the gas meter man came along with his bill. If Mrs. Bowser could have got hold of it first, and she hadn't got back to her kitchen when a long drawn wail called Mrs. Bowser downstairs to find a bald head and 200 pounds of humanity stretched on his back on the lounge.

"WHAT ON EARTH HAS HAPPENED?" SHE EXCLAIMED.

"What on earth has happened?" she exclaimed in considerable fright.

"Woman," said the bundle of humanity without opening its eyes or stirring a finger. "I know all, and further deception is useless; if I die, wrap me up in an old bedgilt and chuck me into a hole in the back yard. If I live—"

"What?"

"Telephone your lawyer to meet my lawyer here in the morning to arrange the details."

And as the night came down and the wind sighed and moaned pedestrians passed the gate on tiptoe and instinctively murmured:
"Poor, poor Mr. Bowser."

pay, of course; but I don't expect that you are going to knuck in with the gas company to rob me. How much of a whack do they give you out of this bill?"

His query was treated with silent contempt, and for an hour he sat on the doorstep and smoked. Then a better feeling took possession of him and he decided to forgive Mrs. Bowser for her reckless extravagance. It was too late to chase lambskins o'er the dewy fields, as the dew had all been sucked up, but they could ride out to the park and view the gondolas and feed the squirrels.

"That's more like you," replied Mrs. Bowser as he told her to get ready. "I knew you would not blame me about the gas bill."

"I was just put out for a minute," he said with a laugh. "If you hadn't said I was fifty-seven years old—"

"Fifty-three, dear; I misspoke myself. Fifty-three years old, and you didn't look younger at forty."

He kissed her for that, but, alas, Nemesis was again at the gate. It was a boy, he had a little bill for a dollar and odd, and he thrust it under Mr. Bowser's nose. Mrs. Bowser gasped and waited. It came:

"By the ears of my grandmother, but what does this mean? I give you money weekly to pay all bills, and yet here is one unpaid!"

"It's made up of trifling balances that have been running for weeks," she replied, "and I have got the money in the house to pay it. Don't let this put you out."

"But it does put me out, and no wonder. We will not go to the park. We will not view the gondolas or any other blamed thing, and we will feed no squirrels."

They returned to the house, and while Mrs. Bowser removed her hat and sat down to a book in the sitting room Mr. Bowser took a seat on the front steps again. After a couple of hours he entered the house, and he announced a trip to the theater for the evening, with a little supper at some restaurant to wind up the entertainment.

"I—I didn't mean to be cross," he said as they returned home. "I expect it was your saying that I was fifty-seven years—"

"I said fifty-three," she interrupted. "Well, I understood you to say fifty-seven. The idea that you thought me an old mossback rather hurt my feelings. Of course you are not to blame about either the gas or the butcher bill, and if I lost my temper—"

"But you didn't."

"Thanks. You are just the nicest woman on the face of this earth."

"And you are the best man."

Mr. Bowser decided to run down and obtain the tickets before dinner, when Deadwood Dick struck their trail again. The cook came upstairs and exultantly announced that there was not enough coal in the house to cook breakfast. If she had made the announcement to Mrs. Bowser, it would have been all right, but she went to the wrong head of the house,

MISS GRACE MACKEY DRINKS TWO OUNCES OF CARBOLIC ACID

Shocking Suicide of Well-Known Newark Teacher.

Two Years Ago Miss Mackey Fell Into Well at Mt. Vernon, Injuring Her Spine--Details of the Saturday Evening Tragedy.

A case of suicide with accompanying circumstances of sorrow and mystery, came to light Saturday afternoon, when the unconscious form of Miss Grace Mackey, a well known and successful school teacher, was found beside the road about two and a half miles from the city, over Second street hill.

The young woman was taken into the home of William Wehls, near the spot where she was found, and Dr. W. H. Knauss and Dr. J. P. H. Stedens were hurried to the scene, but their ministrations were futile, as death came to relieve the sufferings of the unfortunate woman about 45 minutes after she was found.

A two ounce bottle that had contained carbolie acid was found about one-half mile from the spot and this told the story of Miss Mackey's death.

Miss Mackey was in exceptionally good spirits Saturday morning, and all arrangements had been made to open her private school on Monday at her home, 228 North Third street. She left home at 10 o'clock, taking with her a number of circulars advertising the advantages of her school and system of instruction. Her expressed intention was to call on Miss Laura Jones, in whose private school on North Fourth street she had assisted in teaching, then on Miss Anne Fulton on Locust street, and afterward upon the parents of several prospective pupils.

No alarm was felt until three o'clock by the family, as it was thought she had remained for lunch with Miss Fulton, but a telephone call brought the news from the Fulton home that Miss Mackey had not been seen there.

A search was then instituted, the hospital and other places where she would have been taken in case of sickness or accident, being visited. The police were notified and the search became general. She was found about 5:15 o'clock. She was seemingly unconscious, but upon being given a glass of milk, the color came back to her face and her eyes opened with the gleam of consciousness, but she never spoke a word, and in a short time, sank into unconsciousness and final death.

Dowers & Bradley's ambulance removed the remains to their undertaking establishment, where they were prepared for burial, and from there they were taken to the stricken home. The funeral took place at 9 o'clock Monday morning from the home, Rev. G. W. Van Fossen conducting the services, assisted by Rev. F. A. Wilbur, D. D., of Mt. Vernon, a personal friend of the deceased young lady.

Grace Mackey was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mackey, of Mt. Vernon, but had lived in Newark at different times, the last period being two years. She was educated in the Mt. Vernon schools, and developed an active, energetic, and thoroughly trained mind, which made her in many ways a remarkable woman. She displayed a natural aptitude for instructing the young, which was carefully supplemented by thorough normal training, making her a pre-eminently successful teacher.

About two years ago she fell 25 feet to the bottom of a well in Mt. Vernon, and sustained an injury to the spine, from which she suffered, the apparent symptoms being extreme nervousness and sometimes nervous exhaustion. She obtained a position in the public schools in Newark, where her conscientious and successful work attracted attention, but it was too hard on her system and on two occasions she had to give it up. These occasions were preceded by periods of exhaustion, at which time she would go to sleep from which she could not be aroused for from 48 to 60 hours. Physicians told the family that these periods of slumber, while not normal, were in the nature of a blessing to the overwrought brain, saving the patient from brain fever and probable insanity. It is the unanimous opinion of the family, friends and physicians that it

The shock to the immediate family was unbearable. The dead girl's demeanor on Saturday was especially cheerful, and while down town met Rev. Van Fossen and several other friends to whom she talked in her accustomed brilliant style. They can not believe now that she contemplated her rash act at that time. She purchased a lunch of cheese and crackers which she took with her and was seen eating before she was found unconscious, and it is thought that on the spur of the moment, under stress of a temporarily deranged mind, she purchased, or in some way procured the deadly acid.

Suicide was, to Miss Mackey, an inconceivable crime, and she had, in discussing the matter with friends, so expressed herself. The entire idea of self destruction met in her an opponent from every consideration of religion, morality and common sense, so that insanity is the only motive that can be assigned for her action by the family and friends.

It is thought Miss Mackey walked a half mile from where the bottle was found, to where she sank exhausted, after taking the terrible dose.

The deceased was 24 years of age, and leaves a mother, who lives in Newark with a sister, Miss Edith Mackey, a teacher in the Newark public schools, and a father, Henry Mackey, who is a traveling man with headquarters at Mt. Vernon.

The interment, which was private, was made in Cedar Hill cemetery.

DISCHARGED SO THE WITNESSES NEEDN'T APPEAR.

Action Taken Because of the Supreme Court's Decision—September Term of Court Opened.

The September term of Common Pleas Court convened Monday morning, with Judge Charles W. Seward presiding.

The Supreme court having recently decided that all special legislation was unconstitutional, and it having been determined that the jury law governing Licking county was special legislation, because it did not apply to every county in the State, the Court took the view that any petit or grand jury under that law was, therefore, an illegal jury, and the legislature would have to pass a law of a general nature applying to all counties in the State before any legal jury could be obtained.

A bill has already passed the Senate and will shortly pass the House to cure this defect, after which a new jury commission will have to be appointed, and the jury-wheel refilled with names from which is drawn the jurors.

In the meantime, the Court has discharged the petit and grand juries from further attendance at the present term of Court, and will try cases triable to the Court, or equity cases, until new jurors are drawn.

The witnesses who have been subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury this week, need not appear.

The case of Mary C. Colly vs. Susan Carpenter, admrx. et al, is for trial to the Court Tuesday.

Counsel for defendants will advise the Court Tuesday. The Court held that the gas pipes in controversy were owned by the Crawford Natural Gas Co. J. D. Jones, Davies, Winn.

A Lawn Fete.

The lawn fete given by the Banner Council No. 1, Ladies Auxiliary of the American Protective Union at the home of Mrs. Alfred Stevens, was a perfect success in every way. The beautiful weather did not seem to have any effect on the large crowd that gathered at our friend's home to enjoy the hospitality of the ladies of this grand organization.

The prize cake given to the lady that sold the most tickets was presented to Mrs. Alfred Stevens, who sold 145 tickets, the second prize was won by Mrs. Alice Tobin, she selling 121 tickets, her prize being a smaller than the first. The Gruber Trio furnished the music for the evening which was greatly enjoyed by all present.
